CELEBRATING 20 YEARS OF VARSITY ATHLETICS

ALUM TURNS A LOVE FOR BASKETBALL INTO A CAREER

BREAKING GROUND FOR A NEW LOWER SCHOOL

CLASS OF 2008 GRADUATES
Sophomore Anneka Wilson was named Female Runner of the Meet at the Virginia Independent School Athletic Association’s 2008 state track and field competition. She won both the 3200m and 1600m, and placed third in the 800m run and contributing 26 individual points to the team total.
Dear Potomac Community,

With this issue of The Term we celebrate 20 years of varsity sports at Potomac. For our alumni who graduated before we had an Upper School, you will be amazed at the size and strength of our athletics program. But it is not the size and strength about which we are most proud. It is the excellence, sportsmanship, support, and challenge that define our program. It is, in the words of one of our coaches, the fact that “We honor the game.”

During these 20 years we have developed an Interscholastic Athletics program in grades 7-12 that comprises 61 teams in 21 sports. Our 87 coaches include teacher coaches as well as coaches involved with club, university, and Olympic development teams. Since 1990, when we graduated our first class of seniors, we have achieved 27 Championship Titles, eight State Championships, and produced 28 All American athletes. Many of our graduates go on to play college sports. Ours is a program of excellence that demands much from our scholar athletes — commitment, hard work, sportsmanship, and teamwork.

We define excellence much like the Greeks used the word arête - to include skill, virtue, goodness, and valor. The Greeks used the concept as an ideal for both the mind and the body. At Potomac, we believe the dimensions of sport teach our children the largest of life’s lessons. Our students learn how to be leaders as well as team players. They learn how to win and how to lose with class and grace. They learn how to sit on the bench and work hard for a spot on the team. As they learn they gain the respect of their teammates, their coaches, and their opponents.

Our 2007-08 Student Government president described his experience on the cross country team as “phenomenal.” He said, “We have amazing runners, then others like me. But we’re all in the race, breathing together, pushing ourselves to the limit. I had never put my all into something like I did with that team. Our coach knew everyone’s times — by heart. He valued and respected every one of us.”

This is the measure of our success. Challenging ourselves, working together, playing fair, treating one another with respect. These are the essential elements of sports and of life.

XXX ANNUAL REPORT
This fall season marks the 20th anniversary of varsity athletics at The Potomac School. On the eve of this milestone, Potomac athletes concluded their most successful year ever, winning five league championships and state championships in three sports: girls indoor track and field, boys basketball, and girls lacrosse. Two other teams were state semifinalists. Fourteen Panthers won individual state champion titles in events ranging from boys cross country to diving. A dozen players were recognized in The Washington Post’s All-Met selections. Eight athletes competed at Nike Indoor Track Nationals. One Panther, senior Johns Ross, earned an All-American title. Clearly, athletics at Potomac is flourishing.

We salute these accomplishments, yet more important to us is the kind of program we have created here at Potomac. Our goal is exemplified in our athletics motto, “Success with honor.” According to Girls Athletic Director Cas Blanchard, “We offer the best competitive experience for our kids, while maintaining integrity and honor in our program.” Success can be measured in a lot of ways. Winning is clearly one measure. But the old cliché is really true: it matters how you win or lose, and it matters how you play the game.
Potomac is serious about this foundational principle. We are preparing our students to lead exemplary lives and there is perhaps no better practice for that mission than an excellent athletics program. Our students learn how to collaborate with teammates toward a common goal, how to persist under pressure, and how to accept and learn from constructive criticism—important skills for the workplace and life. We hire the best coaches we can find, but only those who understand and value the mission of our school. We emphasize the values our students need to be successful athletes and successful people. We ask and expect our students to handle success and defeat with equal grace.

As Potomac’s Boys Athletics Director Rob Lee points out, “Varsity sports at Potomac are serious competitive programs, but, at the same time, the kids and coaches have fun.” Participation is remarkably high throughout grades 7-12. “Our students want to participate on teams and they do so with remarkable commitment,” says Rob.

EXCELLENCE IN THE CLASSROOM AND ON THE PLAYING FIELD

Athletics is co-curricular, meaning outside of, but complementing, the standard curriculum. Skills and habits acquired in the classroom and on the playing fields are practiced and enhanced in both arenas. As every athlete knows, there are physical links to mental performance and creativity. Physical conditioning improves brain function, as well as focus. Requiring preparation, practice, and conditioning, focus is a habit developed in athletics that is mirrored in academic work. “Athletics enhances academics. Students are educated in both realms,” says Rob.

Recognizing that student-athletes spend a great deal of time in practice, in the weight room, and at games, Potomac explored the question of how such commitments impact academic demands. Many Potomac students believe the time commitment a sport requires actually forces them to become better organized and make more efficient use of their time. Studies support this belief; college athletes get better grades in season, when the demand on their time is greatest, than during the off-season.

STONG, BALANCED LEADERSHIP AND EXCEPTIONAL COACHES

Potomac deliberately designed a unique leadership structure that puts programs for both genders on an equal footing. We are among the...
Potomac’s 21st century athletic uniforms feature a bold new addition to the School’s traditional navy and white colors – accents of vibrant orange. The secondary color, used only for sports, distinguishes the Panthers from the other teams in the area, many of which, are also garbed in blue and white.

Athletic Directors Cas Blanchard and Rob Lee originally proposed the addition of a third color in order to standardize uniforms. At that time, a third color was already being used on many of our teams’ uniforms to outline numbers and letters, as decorative edging, and for practice gear. The color used, however, varied from black to gray to light blue.

The addition of the color orange was approved and supported by both the administration and the student government. Over the past few years, as uniforms needed replacing, a consistent and contemporary Potomac look has evolved. The bold touch of orange has been phenomenally successful with students, who enjoy the Panthers’ distinctive new style on the field.
POTOMAC’S PHYSICAL EDUCATION PROGRAM K–6

The athletic skills, sportsmanship and character building, and the fun all begin in our K–6 program. “We build the foundation for the school’s sports program and beyond,” says PE Director Carol Hilderbrand. “If we don’t turn them to physical activity at this level, they may not be interested in the next.”

The goal of our program is to learn fundamental skills such as striking, throwing and catching, running, jumping and landing, and to participate in team-building initiatives and cooperative games. Our children learn how to master these skills in a safe, nurturing environment.

“Our physical education teachers plan activities that are age appropriate with the goal to ensure that every child feels safe, successful, and most importantly, is having fun,” according to Carol. We build on their successes.”

Students enjoy cooperative games as much as they do the competitive games. Perhaps the most popular is “Peanut Butter Pit.” The idea is to get every player across the peanut butter pit and over to the island, via rope swings. Of course the peanut butter pit is pretend and the island is a mat, but you might not know that from the excitement over the game. Teamwork and problem-solving skills are required to complete the game successfully.

Carol, who has been head of the program for 12 years, says her biggest success is that “the kids love the program and thrive while learning skills and working together.”

An added bonus of coaching is that students see me in a very different light from how they know me as Dean and teacher.”

Potomac’s outside coaches are equally dedicated. Varsity girls lacrosse Head Coach Jessica Dauer Lowrance works full time for the U.S. Postal Service as a pricing manager. She also coaches an elite travel team during the off season. Lowrance enjoys the great attitude of her Potomac players, lauding their coachability and willingness to work. She says she has never met a group of girls who work so hard. “When they put their minds to it,” Coach Lowrance says, “there is nothing they can’t accomplish.”

A small but vital group of alumni have returned to the school as coaches, making valuable additions to the program. Meredith Murphy ’02 is Co-Head Coach of the varsity field hockey team, an assistant coach for varsity lacrosse, and kindergarten assistant. “I loved my entire 14 years at Potomac, and athletics was a huge part of my high school experience. It’s great to see the other side, especially how much effort the coaches put into the athletic program.” Cabell Maddux ’86 was an assistant boys lacrosse coach at Potomac from 1996–99. After a stint at St. Johns College High School, he returned to Potomac last year as Head Coach of the varsity team. He recently told visiting alumni that the level of play at the school and throughout our league has risen dramatically since he was a student.

More than 47 banners adorn Chester Gym, marking Potomac victories during the last 20 years. Our traditional rivals always elevate the level of play on both sides of the field or court. Some of the strong ties and intense rivalries with other independent schools in our own leagues and throughout the state include:

- Girls soccer against National Cathedral School. The two teams have competed for the right to play in the ISL finals (Division AA) for the last four years.
- Boys basketball games against cross-town rival Flint Hill draw a deafening, standing-room-only crowd, whether the game is played at home or away.
- Girls lacrosse has gone to the finals of the state championship (Division II) each year since the tournament was instituted in 2006. The title has come down to a battle against Cape Henry Collegiate all three times, a match-up that has already become a competitive rivalry for both teams.
- Girls track and field always anticipates going head-to-head with St. Catherine’s in Richmond.
- Varsity football gets especially pumped up when it is time to take on Sidwell Friends, a game usually decided by a single touchdown.

SMALL SCHOOL ATMOSPHERE, BIG AND SMALL SCHOOL BENEFITS

Potomac athletes enjoy the advantages of both small and large schools. Alum Jordan Yarboro ’05 plays long-stick midfield for Tufts. He feels that Potomac’s size gives athletes a strong advantage.

“At Potomac you get a lot of individual attention from the coaches,” he says. Because it is a relatively small school you get more opportunities to play and at an earlier age than you would at a big high school.” Last year Jordan was honored as All New England (all Division III conferences in New England) and All NESCAC (New England Small College Athletic Conference).

PJ Miller, Potomac’s high-flying basketball guard, transferred from a much larger parochial school in the area. PJ believes the size of the student body at Potomac is a definite advantage.
Potomac is recognized across the state for its strong running program. Our athletes have captured conference and state titles in cross country, indoor track and field, and outdoor track and field.

Potomac's small size means more opportunity to compete at a younger age than students would have at a big high school.
Ed Wolkind, Assistant Athletic Director, Head Coach of the varsity football and baseball teams, and Admission Officer, was the recipient of a Byrnes professional development grant to research football and athletics programs around the country. He is visiting schools such as Williams College, Trinity College, and Washington and Lee University, all small co-ed Division III institutions where academics are paramount. His goal is to learn how these schools develop the same kind of excellence in their athletics programs as they do in their academic programs. He will also visit Penn State to learn how they have stayed true to their Success with Honor mission.

PURSUITING EXCELLENCE ON THE FIELD AND IN THE CLASSROOM

[Top] Potomac teams emphasize mentoring between upperclassmen and their younger teammates.

[Bottom] Our basketball, baseball, lacrosse, and softball teams travel over school breaks and play against teams from across the U.S.
He particularly likes Potomac’s strong sense of community. “At Potomac,” he says, “athletes are able to focus on and improve skills because everyone is on the same page. Because kids strive so hard for excellence in academics at Potomac, it’s a lot easier for them to do the same thing in sports.”

Like athletes at much larger schools, our basketball, baseball, lacrosse, and softball teams travel over school breaks, taking the opportunity to play against teams from across the United States. And Potomac has a strength and conditioning program designed to maximize player potential and minimize the chance of injuries, more common among larger programs. A broad range of Potomac summer sports camps gives our younger students the chance to improve their skills in a particular sport. Establishing relationships with varsity coaches also increases their comfort level with varsity sports and eases the transition to a competitive athletic program.

ON THE CUTTING EDGE

Potomac has recently begun a partnership with the Positive Coaching Alliance (PCA), a Stanford University-based program that was started to transform youth sports by creating a positive culture. With the motto, “We honor the game,” PCA’s goal is to develop athletic programs that help athletes enjoy positive character-building experiences, as well as winning records.

Potomac has sponsored three PCA workshops since August, for coaches, Upper School administrators, and senior leaders and team captains. A fourth workshop for parents is planned for November. The goal is to build a common understanding about what we want our athletics program to exemplify.

For example, the workshop for coaches spoke to the double goal of winning coupled with emphasizing teachable moments that impact character development. The workshop for the members of the Senior Athletic Committee (SAC) and captains encouraged students to set the triple goals of bettering themselves as players, as teammates, and bettering the game.

Potomac teams emphasize mentoring between upperclassmen and their younger teammates. Charlotte Lawson ’04 went out for cross country as a freshman even though she had never competed in the sport before. As an inexperienced underclassman she was a bit nervous on the first day of preseason practice, but was pleasantly surprised by the warm welcome extended by her teammates, particularly the older students. The upperclassmen offered the new students not only acceptance and advice, but also friendship off the track.

Mentoring extends beyond graduation. Although she now attends the University of Pennsylvania, Charlotte still drops by Potomac to visit the track team and work out with them when she is in the area. She recently hosted Potomac athletes racing in the Penn Relays for dinner. Football players like Sam Gulland ’06, Alex Kolt ’06, and Greg Namrow ’07, who now play college ball, also enjoy giving back by teaching young players at Potomac’s summer football camps.

ENTHUSIASTIC PARENT SUPPORT

Seven years ago, Potomac seized an opportunity to channel parent support and spirit by organizing the “Panther Pride” booster club. Parent volunteers run the school’s concession stand known fondly as “The Pit.” Close to 100 volunteers operate the snack bar daily after school and during special games and events throughout the year. Thanks to these parents, students can get a snack before practice, stay at school to cheer for their classmates, and connect socially. Money raised by Panther Pride activities is used to upgrade the school’s athletic facilities.

Panther Pride is not just about The Pit. It is about building the spirit of community around athletics at Potomac. The organization manages a system of parent reps for every Intermediate School, junior varsity, and varsity team. Volunteers facilitate communication among parents, coaches, and the athletic department and organize pre- and post-game snacks, team dinners, and end-of-season celebrations. Panther Pride volunteers are helping attract Lower and Middle School families to games so they too can enjoy the camaraderie and family fun that Potomac athletics offer.

A CULTURE THAT RECOGNIZES THE VALUE OF ATHLETICS

At Potomac student-athletes are respected for the right reasons. More important than winning is the kind of character that each of our athletes model. We talk about success, but we talk about success with honor. Potomac’s athletes know they are the school’s ambassadors. In many cases, another school’s experience with Potomac is based solely on their athletic experiences. We want to continue to ensure that that experience is positive and that our athletes represent the best of Potomac.

Earlier this year, senior Patrick Duff shared his thoughts about the importance of athletics at Potomac with rising 9th graders.

[Q] How would you describe your experience with Upper School athletics?

[A] Athletics has been the most meaningful part of my Potomac experience. Sports unite people in ways that the classroom can’t. Being part of a team gives you a connection with students in other grades and with different types of people that adds immeasurably to your experience here at Potomac.

[Q] How do you balance school work and three sports in an academic year?

[A] An athletic commitment requires you to get into a routine and to be more efficient about everything in life, including homework. Actually, I learned the lessons necessary to be a good student as well as a good athlete on the sports field. Doing “up downs” on the football field taught me the discipline necessary to get homework done on time. I couldn’t have done as well in the classroom or in music without what I learned on the football field.
I couldn’t have done as well in the classroom or in music without what I learned on the football field.

[Q] What were the challenges you experienced when you started upper school sports?

[A] During my freshman year, I was not as dedicated an athlete as I am today. I was still adjusting to the Upper School, and my grades weren’t great. As I improved on the athletic field, however, I found myself wanting to be the best I could be, both athletically and academically.

Playing a fall sport also eased the adjustment into the Upper School. Coming out for football, I immediately became part of the greater community. Between football, swimming, strings, and Japanese class, I got to know at least a quarter of the Upper School community before the end of my freshman year.

[Q] How would you describe the competitive atmosphere at Potomac?

[A] As a male athlete, you hear a lot of concern about the jock culture. Yet I can’t imagine a more collective, collaborative environment than athletics at Potomac. Playing sports at such a small school gives even the youngest players a face and a voice. Athletics gives you a way to distinguish yourself in high school that no other activity provides. Sports also helped clear my head and maintain emotional balance. Competition brings out the most meaningful, most human, most basic emotions, ones that you will never experience any other way.

[Q] Was preseason difficult?

[A] Although preseason was physically grueling, it’s also among my fondest high school memories. The time spent together with friends – sweating, working, struggling – is time I will never forget.

[Q] What is the coaching like at Potomac?

[A] I’ve always been incredibly impressed by the quality of coaches at Potomac. I’ve never met a better group of coaches in one place. Each one has something to offer, and I’ve learned so many lessons from them. They’ve set important examples for me, teaching me how to work hard. You don’t learn to work hard from doing homework.
You don’t attend this school to learn from books, you attend this school to learn from people. And you do that in athletics. Go home at 3:10 pm, and you miss out on so much. There is a whole other world in athletics – one filled with amazing, dedicated coaches.

[Q] So you would encourage students new to the Upper School to participate in the athletics program?

[A] Playing sports at Potomac is a great opportunity. You’ll never have a better chance in life to try new things. During the winter season my freshman year, I wanted to stay in shape and I found myself missing the team atmosphere of football. So I went out for swimming. Even though I never swam competitively before, I qualified for states my freshman year, and all four years of high school. Swimming turned out to be my best sport. Athletics shows what you can achieve when you try something new. It doesn’t matter what skill level you are, there’s a home for every single person here at any level if they have the desire.

You’ll be cheating yourself if you don’t take part in athletics. You won’t build the same kinds of intense friendships and you’ll be missing out on fantastic memories. After high school, you won’t remember the homework and the tests you took, but you will remember the great victories, your teammates and captains, and the examples of great leadership. Your teammates will become your family, friends forever.
LEADING THE WAY
Potomac coaches are an impressive group of individuals with unique and varied backgrounds. As coaches and mentors they develop bonds with their athletes that extend well beyond graduation. Meet three of these talented professionals.

COACH KATIE FUDD
GIRLS BASKETBALL

Katie Fudd has led the girls varsity basketball program at Potomac for the past five years. Despite offers from other schools, including one of the strongest girls programs in the area, Coach Fudd has chosen to remain at Potomac. This fall, she takes on yet another role at the School. Her daughter entered kindergarten here in September, making Katie both coach and parent.

Locals may remember Coach Fudd as Katie Smrcka-Duffy, a star player at James Madison High School in the mid-1990s and one of the best players to ever emerge from the metro area. She still holds seven records in the Virginia High School League, including career points (2,463), points in a season (950), career steals (474), most three-point goals in a season (104), and best season scoring average (30.6). In 1996, Katie averaged 28.8 points per game and was selected Washington Post Player of the Year.

Coach Fudd had an impressive freshman year at North Carolina State, where she was named Athletic Coast Conference Rookie of the Year. Transferring to Georgetown University, she averaged 17 points per game, had 387 assists and 624 rebounds in 121 college games. Despite rumors that she might leave Georgetown early for the WNBA, Katie remained through her senior year. She was drafted by Sacramento in 2001 but injuries kept her from playing at the professional level.

Alongside her coaching duties at Potomac, Coach Fudd is principal of “Game Time Skills,” a company that teaches basketball players to maximize their talents. She holds clinics and works with athletes one-on-one. She is also a personal trainer. “Success is not based on wins and losses,” says Fudd, “rather, it is based on what we are capable of. We want our kids to reach their potential, to strive for their personal best.”

What keeps Coach Fudd at Potomac? She loves working with Potomac students because they are held accountable for everything they do, from showing up for each practice ready to work to communicating any conflict with their academic work. This accountability both on and off the court allows her to concentrate on coaching and develop relationships with her players. Coach Fudd appreciates that academics are very important to the Potomac athlete. She works with each player to help balance sports and academics.

Coach Fudd is married to Tim Fudd, a former assistant boys basketball coach at Potomac and currently on the coaching staff of Longwood University.
COACH MARCELO VALENCIA
BOYS VARSITY SOCCER

A native of Chile, Marcelo Valencia came to The Potomac School in the 1990s as an assistant soccer coach under Michael Brady. That “amazing” experience brought him back a year later as Head Coach of the boys varsity soccer team. What keeps Marcelo here year after year? “It’s the relationships with the kids and the families and also the way the Athletic Department at Potomac treats their coaches,” he says.

Coach Valencia’s clear love of coaching is readily apparent, but he is eager to point out that it’s the people who make the real difference in an athletic program, and that the Potomac community is a special place to coach. Coach Valencia talks about how much it has meant to him to be able to follow kids throughout their Upper School years whom he began coaching when they were 11 years old. He is grateful for the opportunity to maintain these important relationships in an environment where athletics is core and coaching is so respected.

When asked to describe a memorable moment at Potomac, Marcelo answers with a smile. In 2002, his first year as Head Coach, his wife waited patiently on the sidelines as Potomac played a hard-fought game against Georgetown Day School. His delight in winning the game was followed shortly thereafter by elation as his wife went into labor and delivered their first child. That was a particularly memorable year for Marcello and for Potomac – the team went on to win the MAC tournament at the end of the season. His team’s 2002 success is how Marcelo remembers which year his daughter was born!

Marcelo played soccer at George Washington University, where he earned Atlantic 10 first-team honors all four years. As a sophomore, he was named Atlantic 10 Player of the Year and earned All South Atlantic Region first-team honors from the National Soccer Coaches Association of America. Statistically, Marcelo ranks third on GW’s all-time career points list with 94, including 27 goals and 40 assists. Twice GW’s MVP selection (in 1992 and 1994), the outstanding midfielder is tied for seventh in goals and second in assists, and he is the only player in GW soccer history to notch more than 25 goals and assists in a career. He was inducted into the George Washington University Hall of Fame this year.

Following graduation, Marcelo played professional soccer for the Washington Warthogs, Philadelphia KiXX, Hershey Wildcats, and Baltimore Blast for five seasons. In addition to his position at Potomac, Coach Valencia coaches several other teams in Northern Virginia, including premier travel teams for McLean Youth Soccer. He holds a Master’s Degree in Guidance Counseling.
COACH CABELL MADDUX
BOYS VARSITY LACROSSE

Cabell Maddux ’86 is one of a small but talented group of alumni who have chosen to give back to Potomac by sharing their athletic expertise. As an alumni coach, he brings a tremendous amount of pride in the School and some extra motivation to build a successful program.

After graduation from high school, Cabell Maddux went on to Hobart College, where he was a two-time All-American in lacrosse. Hobart was a lacrosse powerhouse and Maddux played in NCAA championships three of his four years in college. His team won NCAA titles in 1991 and 1993. Maddux was named MVP of the 1993 National Championship game, as well as NCAA Attackman of the Year. He earned All-American honors twice during his college career.

Maddux returned to Potomac as an assistant lacrosse coach in 1996. After three years, he was offered an opportunity to develop a new lacrosse program at St. John’s College High School. Later, while at the helm of the boys lacrosse program at McLean High School, Maddux was named Northern Virginia Coach of the Year. He also coached the German National Mens Team from 1998-2001.

In addition to his coaching duties, Cabell Maddux is a successful entrepreneur. Recognizing the need for a local supplier of lacrosse equipment, he founded Madlax, which has become the largest lacrosse specialty store in the Washington metro area. Madlax sponsors 10 all-star and elite lacrosse teams, three leagues and six camps, all coordinated by Cabell Maddux.

There has been a great deal of change at Potomac since the 1990s, says Coach Maddux. The level of lacrosse play has improved dramatically throughout the region, and particularly in the Mid-Atlantic Conference.

Maddux is enthusiastic about the lacrosse talent and potential at Potomac. One of Coach Maddux’s priorities is to ease the transition for students moving from Intermediate School sports into the Upper School varsity program. The expansion of the Upper School has already increased the number of boys playing lacrosse to more than 60; in 2008 Potomac had enough players to not only field a junior varsity team, but also allow them to play a full schedule of 12 games.
TO EACH A LEAGUE OF HIS—OR HER—OWN
Potomac's student-athletes compete in leagues known for both athletic and academic excellence, and strong traditional rivalries. Schedules are rounded out by non-conference match-ups against outstanding opponents from our area and across the state of Virginia in order to allow the Panthers to test their skills against some of the region's best.

Our girls compete in the Independent School League (ISL). Made up of 15 schools in the Metropolitan Washington area, the ISL includes such institutions as Georgetown Visitation, National Cathedral School, St. Stephens-St. Agnes, and Madeira. (See below for a complete listing.) ISL teams are found in the top 10 in all sports in the metro area.

Teams in the ISL are divided by level of play into either the AA or A Division, with the AA Division being the more competitive. A strong soccer program may compete in the AA Division, while a less competitive tennis team from the same school is in the A Division. In this way, the strongest programs are challenged, while less strong teams also find good competition. Each division has its own post-season playoffs and championship awards. At the close of the season, the school that finishes last in the AA Division is moved down to the A Division for the next year, and the top finishing A school is moved up.

Potomac was a founding member of the boys Mid-Atlantic Conference, known as the MAC. At its inception in 1994, the league consisted of five teams: Potomac, Mercersburg Academy, Maret, Flint Hill, and St. James. Later, Sidwell Friends joined the MAC and Mercersburg withdrew. The further addition of Georgetown Day School and St. Andrew's gave the conference its current configuration of seven teams.

Squash is the only sport at Potomac that does not compete in either the ISL or MAC. Since very few schools in the region offer the sport, our girls and boys squash teams have teamed up with the Mid-Atlantic Squash Association, an informal group of schools along the East Coast that offer squash.

In addition to the ISL and MAC conference games, our teams go head-to-head with strong independent and public school teams. The Panthers play against local teams and schools from across Virginia. Match-ups against strong competitors from Virginia schools like Collegiate, St. Catherine's, Woodberry Forest, and Trinity Episcopal provide top-quality competition against peer institutions in the state and also help establish our level of play for state championship selection.

The Virginia Independent School Athletic Association (VISAA) is the umbrella organization that organizes and regulates state-wide competition among 108 member independent schools. Prior to the creation of VISAA, independent championships existed for some sports such as cross country, boys basketball, and wrestling, while others had no post-season play. VISAA has provided structure and uniformity across sports so that all have the opportunity to compete in post-season tournaments.*

Independent schools vary widely in size, so post-season competition is organized by division based on enrollment. Most sports are divided into Division I and II; there is also a Division III in football, baseball, and softball, as well as boys and girls basketball. Assignment to a division varies from sport to sport, so although Potomac competes in Division I for tennis, our football team is in Division II. In a few sports – wrestling, swimming, indoor track and field, track and field – all schools, regardless of enrollment, compete in the same state championship.

Post season tournament play is fun and allows students to test their skills against teams they might never compete against otherwise. It has also provided a new row of very impressive championship banners to the wall of the Chester Gym.

*Note: Golf and squash are not currently regulated by VISAA. Girls soccer competition statewide takes place in the spring. Since the Northern Virginia teams play girls soccer in the fall, they are not able to compete at the state level.

At a school where the vast majority of students are also athletes with their own schedule of practices and games, who shows up to cheer at athletic contests? You might expect the stands occupied by parents only, yet Potomac’s student-athletes regularly take time out from their own commitments to support friends and teammates from the sidelines. SAC, the Senior Athletic Committee, takes the leadership role in organizing and promoting school spirit, including encouraging turnout. Members alert the student body and faculty to important athletic contests.

SAC is a select group of seniors with a dedication to sportsmanship. Representing different sports, they share traits of leadership and enthusiasm for Potomac athletics. SAC works with the Athletic Department in planning Homecoming, Winter Weekend, Spring Sports Day, and the Tip-Off Tournament that marks the beginning of basketball season.

Over the past few years, SAC has established a tradition of teams supporting other teams. They have also made it a priority to involve the entire school, kindergarten through 12th grade, as well as the larger Potomac community, in athletics. Having younger students and their families attend games has brought an exciting new element to contests.

The Athletic Department looks to the members of SAC to serve as role models for the student body, and uses it as a sounding board on issues concerning the athletic program and sportsmanship. SAC members may also act as ambassadors in dealing with other schools and in addressing issues of behavior at sporting events.

Nominations to the committee are made by outgoing committee members and by coaches. Although all students on SAC play at least one sport, they are selected for their leadership in the community and on the field, character, and service to Potomac School.
Ross Condon '03 became the youngest Division I coach in the country when he accepted the position of Director of Basketball Operations at Radford University.

FOR LOVE OF THE GAME

An all-state guard on Potomac's 2003 state championship team, Ross Condon had always joked about coaching basketball some day. He came by the interest naturally; father Bill coached both Ross and his younger brother, Kyle, throughout their childhood and imparted his love of the game to them in the process. But by his senior year at Villanova, Ross had other plans. He was getting ready to return to the Washington D.C. area to hunt for a job and prepare for graduate school when a chance conversation with his basketball coach at Villanova University sent his life in a completely different direction.

Sitting in his coach's office, Ross mentioned that he might want to work as a graduate assistant in basketball to help pay for grad school. The coach began talking about running into someone from Radford University the previous weekend, and then picked up the telephone. Before he knew it, Ross heard the coach promising that Ross Condon’s (non-existent) resume would be on its way to Radford immediately. It wasn’t long before the 21-year-old had become the youngest Division I coach in the country.

As Director of Basketball Operations at Radford University, Ross is responsible for all team members, their travel, meals, and academics. He also handles alumni relations and is director of basketball camps. Working with players and coaches is his favorite part of the job. Members of the coaching staff are good friends.

“We share the same enthusiasm for the game,” says Ross “although sometimes we may take it too seriously.”

When Ross Condon entered Potomac as a freshman, he knew very few of his classmates. Sports helped him fit in. Potomac basketball in particular forged incredibly close bonds among the players, so that his former teammates—not only those in the Class of 2003, but also players who were two years ahead of and behind him—still number among Ross’s closest friends.

Ross’s fondest memory of his time at Potomac is winning Potomac’s first state championship in basketball. He remembers unveiling the banner at the annual FAPS Sports Banquet, with the entire community present, as a very powerful moment. That banner is something he can point to and say, “I was part of that.” It was great to go out a winner, remembers Ross, and to bring Coach Carlin a championship. For Ross, the championship title was also a “thank you” to the parents who drove him to school and supported him at games for years.

At Villanova University, Ross was a member of the school’s highly successful basketball team. Potomac, he says, prepared him well for college athletics, even though his role on the Villanova team was quite different. Potomac’s emphasis on hard work and staying humble helped him succeed as a player at the college level. At Potomac he learned that everyone on the team was important; Villanova also stressed that the team was a family. Though Ross did not play the same role on his college team that he did at Potomac, he says he would do it all over again.

Ross’s brother Kyle was a member of this year’s Potomac state championship team, one of four players with older brothers on the 2003 team. As a result, all the brothers now share a unique bond. Ross is still close to his former teammates, as well as their families. They all sat down together recently to discuss the two titles. “This is Potomac in a nutshell,” says Ross. “Potomac has such a powerful community, everyone supports you. It wouldn’t have happened anywhere else in the United States.”

Although Ross is thrilled that his brother could share the experience of going out a winner, he confesses to not being quite as happy that in the process Kyle also broke the Potomac career rebound record Ross set in 2003. Kyle’s career 713 assists passed his brother’s earlier record of 709. “But if someone was going to break it,” Ross says, “it might as well be my brother.”
On a beautiful late spring day the entire student body, faculty, parents, and friends gathered on the Gum Tree field to mark the beginning of construction of the new Lower School. The Junior Hardhat Committee stole the show, arriving by tractor with Donna Lewis, Head of Lower School, and Pawz, the school mascot, by her side. In typical Potomac style, the celebration was child-oriented and child-designed. Third grade students wrote and illustrated a special book, If You Take a Mouse to the New Lower School, (with help from kindergarten artists), which was presented to each family.*

* Accompanied by the school mascot Pawz and the Junior Hardhat Committee, Head of Lower School Donna Lewis arrives at the groundbreaking by tractor.
Dorothy McAuliffe, Chair of the Board of Trustees, opened the ceremony, saying, “What a wonderful celebration of our School and its mission. To break ground on our new Lower School facility on the day of the Kindergarten Circus is perfectly symbolic of the Potomac Way.”

The new Lower School is slated to open in September 2009. We extend a heart-felt thank you to the hundreds of families and friends of The Potomac School who have so generously donated almost $43 million toward our $50 million goal. To complete our Campaign and secure the financial well-being of the School, we need gifts and pledges from every member of our community. We hope you will contact Christine Owens at 703 749-2724 or cowens@potomacschool.org to discuss the many gifting options.
TAKE A WALK THROUGH OUR NEW LOWER SCHOOL

Potomac’s new Lower School building will combine the most beloved features of the old building with state-of-the-art facilities to provide the best learning environment for our youngest students.

Welcome and Assembly

Entering through the Holly Tree Square, a landmark of The Potomac School for several generations, we come first to our new Assembly space. This is one of the most powerful symbols of our community as Lower School students, parents and faculty come together to celebrate learning. This is where students find their individual voices, share values, and listen to and support each other.

The Music Classroom opens directly into the Assembly space, more fully integrating music into our daily life at school.

The Gathering

This space is for more intimate assembly and informal, spontaneous gatherings. Here we invite students to connect throughout the day, much like the Crossroads of the Upper School and the Middle School Square. The Gathering is the hub of the new Lower School, with radiating spokes to the outdoors, art rooms, the Library, and academic wings.

Outdoors

The Gathering opens to a garden, leading to the Gum Tree fields; another spoke opens to the Courtyard and outdoor play spaces, including nine acres of natural areas. These play areas are well removed from the roads and front of the Campus, and offer natural, creative play spaces and opportunities to explore the woods and streams, and invent games.

Art Rooms

These rooms are designed with special rooms for kilns and project spaces. These rooms open directly to a new 1.5 acre garden between the Lower School and Gum Tree fields.

The Library

This active learning space not only reinforces what happens in the classroom, but opens up bigger possibilities for exploring ideas, individually and in groups. In our technology rich environment, books will always be a powerful way for kids to come to know an almost infinite world.

Academic Wings

Our new classrooms are designed to be larger and more flexible than our current classrooms, with lots of sunlight (large windows and higher ceilings) and all rooms opening to the outside, more project space and enhanced technology, and more efficient temperature management. Flexible groupings encourage interactive learning through multi-sensory experiences. All of our resources—from PE to music to computer—are contained within the LS building, bringing these resources closer to the students. We believe we have created classrooms to inspire faculty innovation and encourage joy and enthusiasm for learning.

Our Hallways

will continue to be important learning places with cozy niches for reading or meeting with teachers and friends, and extra project space.

Science Center

There will be expanded opportunities for learning experiences both indoors and outdoors. Inside we will have a lab-like setting and a special space for our animals. On the terrace there will be observation and gardening activities.

*A special thanks to Laura Numeroff, author of If You Give a Mouse a Cookie, for her generous spirit in encouraging our young authors and illustrators to write their own version of her mouse story.

[Bottom] Senior Class President Robin Nicols noted that the school will not change as long as traditions are retained in the new building.
Dan Paradis

During his interview for the position of Head of Baltimore’s Park School, Dan Paradis described the culture at Potomac so effusively and enthusiastically that the interviewer looked at him quizzically and asked, “Why would you ever leave?”

In answer, Dan explained how each year, on the eve of graduation, he counsels the senior class that they are ready to stretch themselves, to join a new community, and to take on new challenges. Now it was time for him to challenge himself with a new community and a new role.

For sixteen years, Dan Paradis served The Potomac School with exceptional dedication and leadership. We have been most fortunate to have him as teacher, Academic Dean, and since 2000, Head of the Upper School, for he is an extraordinary leader, colleague, and educator.

Dan joined Potomac’s Upper School in 1992, after completing undergraduate study at Princeton and graduate work at Brown. In his initial role as a U.S. history teacher and as he moved from classroom to administration, he exemplified dedicated, imaginative leadership.

Under Dan’s vision and leadership, Potomac’s Upper School has grown and thrived, becoming one of the very best academic programs in the Washington metropolitan area. In his words, “We can be proud of the work we have done together to build an Upper School program that is truly exceptional, the cornerstone of which is a dedicated faculty who challenge, stimulate, and support each student to achieve his or her full potential. I have every confidence that the School will continue to thrive in the coming years, and I will always consider myself a part of this special community.” He will be missed.

Marsha Jeffries

“I have really appreciated how hard the teachers at Potomac work to make the mission statement come true,” says Marcia Jeffries, Support Coordinator for the Lower and Middle Schools. Mrs. Jeffries began her career 48 years ago as an English and History teacher for 7th and 8th graders in Marblehead, Massachusetts, and moved to Washington when her physician husband accepted a position at Georgetown University. She began tutoring work with the Kingsbury Center, touching off “a passion that has lasted my whole lifetime.” Another of her passions is soccer. Following her son’s soccer career led Mrs. Jeffries to a long-term interest in college and professional soccer. Retirement will probably find her in Washington, Virginia, growing vegetables and enjoying the 15,000 daffodils she and her husband have planted at their home.

Stephen Serene, Class of 2008, was selected as a 2008 Presidential Scholar, one of 139 outstanding U.S. high school seniors so honored. In announcing the selection, Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings said, “The 2008 Presidential Scholars shine a bright hope on the future of our country. Not only have these young graduates demonstrated exemplary discipline and achievement in academics and the arts, but they have also exhibited exceptional leadership and service to their local communities.”

The 139 Presidential Scholars include one young man and one young woman from each state and the District of Columbia, as well as students chosen at-large and 20 Arts Scholars. Of the three million students who graduated from high school in 2008, more than 3,000 candidates qualified for selection on the basis of outstanding performance on the SAT or through nomination through the youngARTS competition.

Stephen’s accomplishments and talents span the academic, arts, and athletics spectrum. He is an accomplished cellist, performing with the American Youth Philharmonic, where he is co-principal cellist, and the Youth Fellowship Program of the National Symphony. At Potomac he performed with the strings group, chorus, Madrigals, and the Upper School musical.

Stephen enjoyed success in track, cross country and indoor track, running his personal best 800m with a time of 1:57 at the Penn Relays April 25–26, 2008. He is off to MIT and hopes to write a science column that would help inform public policy.

Stephen was the only independent school recipient of the award in the District, Virginia, and Maryland.
In addition to his academic and musical accomplishments, Steven is a talented runner who competed in cross country, indoor track, and outdoor track.
National Geographic’s JASON Project selected Madhu Ramankutty as one of nine 2008 National Energy Argonauts. This multi-disciplinary research initiative directed by renowned scientists works to inspire in students a life-long passion for learning in science, math, and technology. Following in the footsteps of Potomac’s Roz Fennell ’08, who studied the bayou and nutria in Louisiana, Madhu attended a “boot camp” in Washington during the summer. “It was an incredible experience,” said Madhu about the week-long boot camp. The Argonauts met with scientists and visited museums and laboratories, including the Department of Energy’s National Energy Technology Lab in West Virginia. She was amazed by the array of new energy technologies being explored. “Boot camp really opened my eyes,” said Madhu. “I didn’t know all the options.” The group also met with members of Congress in order to better understand the connection between science and policy making.

In September, Madhu traveled to the Johnson Space Center in Houston to work with space architects on her first JASON Project mission. She will continue to be a part of the Argonaut program through her senior year. Her fieldwork will be captured in multimedia and print and will form the basis for the JASON Project curricula. And as an Argonaut she will become a mentor for the entire JASON community.

Madhu is interested in energy policy and the social sciences. She participated in the JASON Project throughout Middle and Intermediate School, but it wasn’t until Hurricane Katrina that she really appreciated her work with JASON. “Katrina came the year after we studied hurricanes. I connected with that, not just the physical nature of hurricanes, but the social impact as well,” she said.

As a National Geographic Jason Argonaut, Madhu Ramankutty has worked with space architects at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

POTOMAC STUDENT SELECTED NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC JASON ARGONAUT
In April, Potomac launched the first the R3 Challenge, a 15-day environmental campaign to Reduce, Reuse and Recycle, modeled on the Green Cup Challenge founded by 15 East Coast schools. During the Challenge, the entire community worked together to reduce energy consumption and improve our school environment. A student-created video with tips on energy conservation, waste reduction, and recycling was shown in each division to kick off the Challenge.

The primary goals of the R3 Challenge were to reduce electricity usage, reuse whenever possible, and to increase recycling. Students and teachers turned off lights whenever they were not needed, and the school’s meters were monitored to see how much of a difference was made. To spread the message beyond campus, students asked their families to turn lights off at home and to observe a “power hour” with lights off every day.

To reduce the amount of trash produced on campus, students began bringing their lunches in reusable containers. Pawprints, the School’s weekly electronic newsletter, printed environmental tips and additional suggestions for recycling and reducing energy use.

E-waste collection was one of the most popular Challenge activities. Families brought in their electronic waste — old TVs, cell phones, computers, DVDs and CDs, and more — creating a small mountain of e-trash in front of the Upper School. The waste was then collected by Turtle Wings, a recycling company specializing in safely recycling and reusing e-waste.

As part of the two-week campaign, the Distinguished Speakers Series featured a talk by noted environmentalist Robert Kennedy, Jr. who discussed his work developing the Riverkeeper Project. On April 19, Stewardship Day, students and parents helped clean up and restore the campus woodlands. Teams tended the Green Roof, Nature Trail, and floodplains, then constructed an outdoor classroom.

Students created a trash sculpture to draw attention to the problem of litter. Trash found on campus was attached to the frame.

Other R3 Challenge activities included a Farmers Market Bake Sale offering organic baked goods, produce, herbs, and flowers. Proceeds from the Bake Sale will support the Environmental Science Garden. Students constructed a trash cube sculpture: a unique three dimensional representation of what does not belong in the woods or on campus -trash. Students attached any trash they did find to the blue and orange armature. And a fuel cell car and a hydrogen powered car were on display with a representative explaining how they work.

Students and faculty gathered in the Upper School Amphitheater on Earth Day to hear the results of their efforts to reduce energy use at Potomac during the R3 Challenge. Building and Grounds Supervisor Perry Swope revealed the energy reduction from the beginning of the Challenge to its conclusion:

UPPER SCHOOL: reduced by 13%
CHESTER GYM: reduced by 19%
THE BUS BARN: reduced by 39%
NORTH CAMPUS: reduced by 22%
LOWER SCHOOL: reduced by 25%.

The Upper and Lower School Environmental Clubs urged their fellow students to begin “an eco-friendly life.” Potomac teacher Cort Morgan said, “Grow where you are planted. Wherever you are, try to make a difference.”

As the next step in a continuing commitment to Environmental Stewardship, Potomac has named an Environmental Sustainability Coordinator. The position has been funded for the next two years by a generous anonymous gift. Bern Hoffmann, Potomac alum and Lower School math resource teacher last year, will help us integrate the many ongoing initiatives throughout the campus, from reducing our environmental footprint, to responsible stewardship of our 90-acre campus, to enriching our outdoor education programs.

A visit by a fuel cell car was a treat for Lower School students.
The Upper School has a new Mandarin and East Asian Studies program that was developed jointly by the Foreign Language and History Departments. In addition to the traditional goal of developing significant communicative competence in Mandarin, the new program will stress cultural literacy and a broad understanding of East Asian history and culture.

Graham Bauerle has joined the faculty to teach and direct this program. Bauerle came by his passion for East Asian studies serendipitously. While enrolled as an undergraduate at McGill University pursuing a strong interest in French, he attempted to sign up for a class in Ancient Greek. It was full, so Bauerle registered instead for a class in Mandarin and discovered a life-long passion. While studying Mandarin, Bauerle became so fascinated by the Chinese language, culture, and people that he declared an East Asian Studies major. After graduation from McGill, Bauerle received a Master of Arts in Chinese Literature at Indiana University where he taught courses in Chinese, East Asian Studies, and Daoism.

Bauerle has developed the curriculum for Potomac’s new Mandarin and East Asian Studies program, inspired in part by a summer spent in China working with Chinese and international specialists in Chinese studies programs. His classes in Mandarin will stress verbal proficiency and the accumulation of a basic working vocabulary, but students will also learn to write characters, the orthographic art form that is inextricably linked to Chinese culture. Bauerle hopes to impart to his students both an understanding and affection for Chinese culture.

After visiting a number of local schools and universities with Mandarin programs, and talking to parents, teachers, and specialists in the field, the Upper School compiled a set of goals for the new Potomac program. The School is also working to make use of the broad set of resources in the community to extend the program to include a study abroad component in the near future.
NEW PARENT ASSOCIATION ESTABLISHED

For over 18 years, the Parents Activities Committee, better known as PAC, has been an integral part of the Potomac community. It began as a small group of dedicated volunteers and gradually expanded its role to become an umbrella organization for thousands of volunteers. As the school has grown over the years, PAC has expanded its role and assumed the broader role of a Parent Association.

In the last year PAC worked with the volunteer leadership to set goals that address the changing volunteer needs of the school and to develop a mission statement. As a result of this process, PAC was absorbed into a Parent Association beginning in the fall of 2008. All Potomac School parents and guardians automatically are members of the Parent Association. In addition, the general meetings of the Parent Association are open to the entire parent body.

Along with a transparent structure, the new Parent Association has a clear mission statement:

The Parent Association strives to create an environment that is welcoming and inclusive of the entire Potomac community. We are an association that understands and embraces the School’s mission statement, and we work collectively to support all aspects of the School’s educational, athletic, artistic and fundraising endeavors. We facilitate open communication and serve as liaisons between the parents and the School’s administration. As a group, we are committed to maintaining a strong community and do so by uniting and supporting the many volunteer organizations at the School. The Parent Association is comprised wholly of parent volunteers; it is this strong tradition of parent involvement that reflects the core values of the Potomac Community.

We would like to thank Marjorie Brennan, the 2007–08 PAC chair, for her outstanding leadership last year and to extend a warm welcome to Patty Coleman, Potomac’s new Parent Association chair for the 2008–09 school year.
Volunteering is a great way to see day-to-day life at Potomac first hand.
Strong performances in the 300m and 110m hurdles by senior Ted Hall added crucial points to the boys total as they repeated as Mid-Atlantic Conference champs.
Panthers Run Away
With ISL and MAC Titles

On May 9 and 10, Potomac played host to the combined Independent School League-Mid-Atlantic Conference (ISL-MAC) outdoor track and field championship. It was the perfect opportunity for the Panthers to present departing Coach Mike Schroer with an impressive gift: dual championships. In the course of the two day event, the girls and boys teams ran, jumped, and threw their way to first place in both conferences. The Potomac girls captured their fifth ISL title in six years. The boys won their second consecutive MAC title, accumulating a commanding 52 point lead over second place Georgetown Day School.

As they had all season, Potomac runners dominated the distance events. In ISL competition, sophomore Anneka Wilson won both the 3200m and 1600m events, and finished second in the 800m run. Freshman runner Kathleen Smith took 3rd in the 1600.

In the MAC, Potomac boys finished 1-2-3 in the 3200m. Johns Ross came in second to his brother, freshman Campbell Ross (see A Slice of Life, page XX), while senior Stephen Serene placed third. Johns Ross and Serene finished 1-2 in the 1600m run, while Serene took the 800m title.

Strong performances by their hurdlers helped the boys repeat as MAC champs. In the 300m hurdles, Panthers Ian Blades, Ted Hall, and Stanley Campbell finished 1-2-3. Hall also took first place in the 110m hurdles.

In track and field, winning a team title requires intense effort from everyone. Each individual’s contribution is important to the outcome. Potomac has an exceptional group of talented athletes who are able to score in multiple events. For example, senior Natalie Heintz captured first place in the triple jump, fourth in long jump, then ran to a second place finish in the 4x400 relays with Trish Brandt, Katie Chockley, and Lindsay McDonough, and to third place in the 4x100 with Brandt, Chockley, and Campbell Milar. Sophomore Brendan Evans won both the high and long jumps, took third in the triple jump, and came in fourth in the 100m dash.

Potomac throwers also contributed to their teams’ success. Sophomore Candace Johnson finished second in shot put and fourth in the discus. In his first year of throwing, senior Brendan Burnett took second in discus and placed third in shot put.

All of Potomac’s relay teams contributed points. The 4x400 teams of Heintz, Brandt, Chockley, and McDonough (girls) and the boys team of Teddy Watson, Ian Blades, Ted Hall, and Stephen Serene had the strongest showing, both coming in second.

At the VISAA state championship, the girls hoped to repeat their 2007 first place finish, but came in second behind a strong Liberty Christian team. Anneka Wilson repeated her performance of two weeks earlier, winning both the 3200m and 1600m, and placing third in the 800m run and contributing 26 individual points to the team total. She was named Female Runner of the Meet. Johns Ross exploded in the last 200 meters of the 3200m to win his second straight state championship. Two girls relay teams – the 4x400 of Katie Chockley, Trish Brandt, Campbell Millar, and Natalie Heintz, and the 4x800 of Lindsay McDonough, Cat Lipsher, Bailey Ramsey, and Sarah Hunt also captured state titles.
Junior PJ Miller was MVP of the state tournament and received All-Met Honorable Mention by The Washington Post.
In a final game that bore a startling resemblance to Potomac’s first state title win in 2003, the 2008 Panthers captured the School’s second Division II state championship in boys basketball.

Propelled into the finals by an incredible comeback victory over Atlantic Shores in the semifinals, Potomac defeated the Miller School 61-49 to win their second state crown. Four players on the team — Tim Prowitt, Kyle Condon, Conor McNerney, and Ian McNerney — had brothers who played on Potomac’s first state championship team: Peter Prowitt ‘03, Ross Condon ‘03, and Chris McNerney ’03. The 2003 title was also decided in a Potomac-Miller School match-up.

As eighth graders, Kyle and Tim admired their brothers’ triumph in the 2003 championship game from the sidelines. “It was something we wanted to do, to earn for ourselves,” says Tim Prowitt.

During the regular season, Potomac was 11-1 in Mid-Atlantic Conference (MAC) play, outscoring their opponents by more than 13 points per game. The team’s only regular season conference loss was to St. James by two points in overtime. Victories over Episcopal High School (54-40), St. Albans (58-36), and St. Stephens-St. Agnes (67-60 in overtime) were highlights of the Panthers’ non-conference play.

Cheered on by standing room only crowds, Potomac defeated cross-town rival Flint Hill twice this year. The Panthers scored their first win at home in the conference opener, beating the Huskies by a score of 53-41. Potomac never trailed during the game. Later in the season the teams met again, this time at Flint Hill. In that game, a free throw by junior guard PJ Miller in the final seconds clinched the 55-54 win for the Panthers.

Having captured the regular season Mid-Atlantic Conference title, the Panthers sailed through the MAC Tournament only to stumble in the final, losing to Flint Hill. Since conference rules require a team to win both the regular season and the tournament to take the title outright, Potomac and Flint Hill ended the season as MAC co-champions.

Although losing in the MAC finals was devastating, Tim Prowitt believes that without it, they probably wouldn’t have gone on to win the state tournament. None of the players wanted their season to end with that kind of loss. Capturing the state title was the only way to erase the defeat.

Seeded #3 in the state, the Panthers earned a bye in the first round of state tournament play. The quarterfinals then brought St. Anne’s Belfield (STAB) to Potomac. The Panthers, who had lost to STAB in overtime 56-68 during the regular season, won this game by a score of 55-50.

Traveling to Richard Bland College in Petersburg, Potomac faced #2 seed Atlantic Shores Christian School in the semifinals. At the end of the first half, the Panthers trailed by a seemingly-insurmountable 25 points. But they began chipping away at the lead, then came roaring back in the final twelve minutes, outscoring the Seahawks 39-8 and stunning the crowd. The score at the final buzzer: Potomac 65, Atlantic Shores 59, setting up the reprise of the 2003 contest.

In his third year at Potomac, Coach Sean Whalen was honored as Virginia Independent School Division II Coach of the Year. PJ Miller was selected the VISAA state tournament’s Most Valuable Player, while Kyle Condon and Tim Prowitt were named to the All-Tournament Team. For the season, Prowitt and Miller were named to the All-State First Team; junior Brian Freeman received Honorable Mention. Miller was also recognized with All-Met Honorable Mention by The Washington Post.
On the way to Potomac’s second state championship in three years, the 2008 girls varsity lacrosse team compiled an impressive 13-5 record. The Panthers didn’t lose a single game against non-conference opponents and in each of their victories they scored in double figures, outscoring their opponents 228-90.

After starting the season with a five-game winning streak, Potomac fell to a powerful St. Stephens-St. Agnes team rated number one in the nation. Two more losses, to Collegiate and Holton-Arms, followed before the Panthers rebounded, defeating Bishop Ireton 10-9 in overtime. The Panthers only other losses were to Bullis and Georgetown Visitation, teams that finished second and third in the ISL this year. Potomac finished fourth in the ISL’s upper division.

At the end of the regular season, Potomac qualified for the state playoffs. This was only the third Virginia Independent School Athletic Association championship for girls lacrosse. All three final games have come down to a battle between Potomac and Cape Henry Collegiate. The Panthers captured the state title the first year, then lost to Cape Henry in 2007.

Before the season even began, the players were focused on redeeming themselves for last year’s loss in the championship game. Identifying two key problems: conditioning and mental stamina, they went to work on both. Practices were run at full intensity; when anyone began to lag, it was the players who urged them on. They worked out in the weight room twice a week. Spring practice in Florida helped prepare them for the usual Virginia spring heat wave. And throughout it all, the team worked on developing mental toughness. It was a winning formula.

Convincing wins in the early stages of the tournament propelled the Panthers into the finals against Cape Henry. It was an extremely physical game played in 90+ degree temperatures; visible heat waves rose from the turf. The lead changed hands several times before the first half ended with the Panthers ahead 7-5. Early in the second half, Cape Henry pulled ahead. Potomac tied the score 9-9 with 20 minutes remaining, then continued to press a faltering Cape Henry team. The final score: Panthers 18, Cape Henry 11.

“Our coach had a huge effect on the outcome of the game,” said senior co-captain Claire Donegan. “She called us in when we were tired and made us think about what we wanted.”

Coach Jessica Lowrance praised her players for learning from their early season losses.

“They learned how to come together as a team. Leadership on and off the field from the captains was a major factor.”

Although this was the strongest Cape Henry team they had seen, according to Coach Lowrance, the Panthers had more offensive weapons, a stronger defense, endurance, and depth on the bench. And the play of Caroline Schmidt in goal was huge for Potomac.

Prospects for 2009 are excellent. The Panthers graduated only two seniors from this year’s varsity team: co-captains Claire Donegan and Emily Sesno. They leave behind a strong group of veteran players, as well as promising new talent.

Andrew Lloyd Weber’s rarely-performed comedy “By Jeeves” garnered rave reviews from the audiences attending the Upper School musical.
A sweltering heat wave broke the evening before commencement allowing the Class of 2008 to enjoy sun, blue sky, and surprisingly bearable temperatures for the traditional outdoor ceremony on Wednesday, June 11. It was a bittersweet occasion as departing Head of Upper School Dan Paradis bid farewell to his final Potomac senior class.

Senior George Zaras was selected by the class to give the student address. His humor-laced comparison of life with the art of brewing coffee prompted a standing ovation from George’s 80 classmates.

Potomac alum Jonathan Darman’99, a political correspondent for Newsweek, became the first Upper School graduate to deliver a commencement address at the School. Recalling his father’s speech to Potomac’s first graduating class nineteen years ago (Richard Darman, then Director of the Office of Management and Budget, gave the 1990 commencement address), Jonathan spoke eloquently about the importance of history and urged the Class of 2008 to draw inspiration from the experiences of those who have gone before them.

A reception in the Upper School Crossroads concluded the afternoon.
Jonathan Darman ’99 became the first alumni of the Upper School to deliver the commencement address.

A diploma and handshake are the highlight of the morning ceremony for the Class of 2008.

More than 100 alumni and their families, as well as current and past faculty, turned out for Reunion Weekend 2008. Classes with years ending in 2, 3, 7, and 8 were honored in this year’s event. The celebration was filled with sunshine, laughter, and fond memories shared among old friends. Festivities began on Friday, April 25 with the traditional May Day celebration. In the evening, an outdoor barbeque in the new Upper School Amphitheater featured a live band and plenty of room for even the youngest family members to run around.

On Saturday, Geoff and Carol Jones hosted breakfast at the Head of School’s residence. Then Potomac teachers and alumni offered seminars on topics ranging from global community service to digital photography. For those who wanted to enjoy the beautiful weather, a walking tour of Potomac’s trails and streams was the perfect afternoon activity. Tours of the School’s new and old buildings were especially popular. All classes gathered in the afternoon for a buffet luncheon, followed by a singalong of Potomac favorites.

The next Reunion Weekend will be held in the spring of 2010.
Patricia Gesell ’57 is delighted to see Imogen Rose again.

Could we edit this caption so it is not a repeat of Reunion Barbeque?

ALUMNI TAKE ON
BOYS VARSITY LACROSSE

Twenty seven alumni representing classes from 1995 to 2007, some of whom traveled from New York for the event, faced off against Potomac’s boys varsity players in the annual battle. Three Potomac All-Americans: George Wisecarver ’95, Cabell Maddux ’86, and Mike Kleeblatt ’97 were among the players who took the field. The alumni ranks were rounded out by varsity players from the Class of 2008 playing in their first alumni game. Potomac parent Dr. Thomas Mayer, a perennial crowd favorite, helped out both on defense and in goal for the alumni. After the first game, the teams were reshuffled and players with odd and even numbered graduation years played against one another.

In addition to bragging rights, members of the winning team received a pair of genuine Potomac game shorts. George Wisecarver ’95 was selected MVP of the event and was presented with a team jersey. Wisecarver was the first of Potomac’s male lacrosse All-Americans. After graduation, he went on to play lacrosse for Dartmouth College.

Next year’s alumni lacrosse game will be played on Saturday, May 30. Mark your calendars and plan to join the fun.

Sean O’Meara crushes Tristan Dellar.

Phinney McIntire ’06 keeps Lee Goehring away from the net.

To celebrate 20 years of Panther football and recognize the teams of the last two decades, the Athletic Department invited all football alumni back to Potomac on November 1, which is the last regular season varsity game against Flint Hill. An alumni flag football game will be played in front of the Upper School at 1:30 pm. Teams will be created based upon graduation year with alumni who graduated in even years playing against those from odd years. A tailgate party and the varsity football game will follow the alumni game. All alumni football players present will be recognized at midfield during halftime.

Potomac’s new football Web site is an opportunity for football alumni to reconnect with the program and the School. The football staff is seeking two or three representatives per class to kick off the alumni pages on the site, which will also feature Panther football history. Contact Coach Paul Franklin pfranklin@potomacschool.org if you are interested in helping out. You can check out the site and see video clips from this season at www.lockerroom1.com/teams/potomac football.
The Class of 2008 was welcomed into the alumni fold at a Mexican-themed dinner hosted by Potomac’s Alumni Office. After enjoying a buffet of fajitas, burritos, and other specialties from south of the border, members of this year’s graduating class cast their votes for alumni class officers. Lola Singletary, incoming Chair of the Alumni Governing Council, extended an official welcome. After receiving class caps, the group posed for their first alumni class photo.

Officers for the Class of 2008 were announced just before the start of commencement. They are Robin Nichols, President; Patrick Duff and Rosalind Fennell, Class Correspondents; Chris Coe and Molly Jaffe, Class Agents.
REDA/BLUE CHALLENGE HEATS UP

THE CLASS OF 1978 MEETS AND EXCEEDS THE OSKOUI CHALLENGE

Dr. Ramin Oskoui has extended a $50,000 matching challenge grant to his classmates. Many responded very generously with gifts and pledges that not only equaled but exceeded his generous offer. In order to encourage participation by all his classmates, Dr. Oskoui’s challenge has been extended to December 31, 2008. The Class of 1978 hopes to be the very first to achieve 100% participation in the Campaign.

In recognition of this extraordinary accomplishment, the first designated faculty fund to acknowledge the pacesetting generosity of the Class of 1978 has been established.

CLASS OF 1973 STEPS UP

Inspired by what the Class of 1978 is doing, an anonymous donor from the Class of 1973 has extended a $25,000 challenge to classmates. All gifts and pledges will be matched up to that amount.

Please contact Christine Owens at 703 749-6330 or cowens@potomacschool.org to arrange for a challenge to your class, your decade, or to Red/Blue alumni in support of The Campaign for Potomac’s Future.
STUDENT INITIATIVE
PROPELS CLASS OF 2008 GIVING TO 80%

A new committee, PACT, (Participate-Achieve-Commit-Transform) was created to provide leadership for the Senior Class giving program. The Class of 2008 is committed to generating school spirit, enthusiasm and gratitude by informing students about the importance of the Annual Fund and philanthropy at Potomac. The goal of PACT is to educate seniors about their role as active and informed future Potomac alumni and donors. Ten student leaders worked very hard to solicit each senior and encourage him or her to make a gift to the Annual Fund prior to graduation.

Members of the PACT leadership were nominated in September 2007. They wrote letters to their classmates and helped to educate them about the importance of participating in the Annual Fund. Through this program, the seniors learned the importance of reaching a 100% Annual Fund participation goal.

Thanks to PACT committee members Chris Coe, Molly Jaffe, Todd Langstaff, Katherine Mullins, Johns Ross, Patrick Duff, Mike Killmon, Anne Lenrow, Emma Rocks and Kiely Webster, 80% of the senior class has participated in the Annual Fund and raised more than $1,250 for Potomac.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES REQUESTS NOMINATIONS

Each year the Potomac School Board of Trustees looks to the larger Potomac community for recommendations of new Board members. Alumni are invited to nominate themselves or submit the names of others. We are seeking alumni, parents, past parents, grandparents, or friends with expertise and experience valuable to the school.

The Board of Trustees is responsible for establishing broad policy goals that align the operation of the school with its mission, providing fiduciary oversight of the school’s operation and supporting long-range strategic planning to ensure Potomac’s future. Board members usually serve two, three-year terms. The Committee on Trustees is looking throughout the Potomac community for qualified candidates who bring different expertise and perspective. The common denominator is an appreciation of and deep commitment to the educational principles, mission, and vision of The Potomac School.

Please send suggestions to Mari Will at mari.will@verizon.net or by mail to 9 Grafton St, Chevy Chase, MD 20815.
The Campaign For Potomac’s Future

Potomac welcomes Dabney Schmitt who joined us in July as the Director of Development. Dabney and the Schmitt family have a long history with The Potomac School. She served as Director of Annual Giving from 2000–2001, sons Jonathan ’93 and Landon’99 both graduated from Potomac, and husband Dick Schmitt served on Potomac’s Board of Trustees.

“I’m delighted to be back at Potomac where my children had so many happy years. I’m impressed with the number of wonderful teachers, many of whom taught my children, who are still here continuing their great work.”

Dabney comes to us from The Holton-Arms School in Bethesda, her alma mater, where she has served as Director of Advancement for the past four years. Previously she was Director of Annual Giving at Stone Ridge.
Dear Alumni,

It is with great pleasure that I assume the position of President of The Potomac School Alumni Governing Council, following in the able footsteps of Victoria Frankhauser Esposito, ’83. I would like to thank Victoria for serving as my mentor and demonstrating the strong leadership skills that continued the voice of alumni on the Board of Trustees.

To represent all who have attended or matriculated through The Potomac School is no easy task, but I would like to do all I can to maintain for some and rekindle for others a sincere interest in the current classes and activities of our beloved alma mater. On behalf of the Council, I invite you to visit the campus, to tour the Upper School building, and to see the beginning work on the Lower School expansion project.

As Council President, it is my goal to help you reconnect with Potomac in a meaningful way. I believe that the experiences we had here still occur in the lives of current Potomac students: wonderful teachers who opened our minds to critical thinking, new ideas and concepts; lasting friendships with schoolmates; team-building and camaraderie fostered through athletics and the arts; and the tradition of assemblies and events such as May Day.

To help continue and enhance these experiences, I encourage your participation in the Annual Fund and the Red/Blue Challenge for The Campaign for Potomac’s Future. Potomac depends on our support, and I know you will join with me and give every request serious and generous consideration. Our newest alumni, the Class of 2008, raised the bar by achieving an impressive 80% participation rate with their gifts to the Annual Fund. This is a percentage I would like all classes to achieve. And thank you to Dr. Ramin Oskoui (my classmate!) for his $50,000 challenge to the Class of 1978. Our classmates responded quickly and generously to the challenge by not only meeting, but exceeding our goal!

The communications you receive from us bear meaning and are important to keep alive our memories of Potomac. We are the products of an exceptional academic institution, and your interest, involvement, input, and participation – both personal and financial – are necessary to keep Potomac thriving. Over the next three years, I invite you to partner with me to make your Alumni Governing Council the best that it can be.

Patricia Morris writes, “At 88, I live in a retirement community in Seattle and no longer travel to the East Coast. My great grandchildren live in Minnesota, California and Myanmar/Burma.”

John M. Kauffmann writes, “I attended The Potomac School on California Street from grades 1-4.” He now lives in Yarmouth, Maine.

Hillis Morris Garlick writes, “Goodness! At eighty five, I’m wondering how many classmates I have left. On the other hand, my twin brother Hugh (Bud) went to St. Albans after Potomac’s 4th grade, and then the War, then Dartmouth, while both my older sister Trish (Young) ’33 and I went to Miss Hall’s and Vassar. We are all three thriving after Potomac.”

Ann Distler Brown writes, “It was wonderful to see the picture of Lisette and Joan with their granddaughter! I’ve been in Greenwich, Connecticut since 1954. My son (in Brattleboro, Vermont) and daughter (in Taylors, South Carolina) have given us five grandchildren. I love traveling and ran the Vassar program for five years. Since 1992, I have worked with a family in Rye. She now has serious Alzheimer’s. Volunteer work has been important. Wish we could all get together some time.

Audrey Gordon Woodgate writes, “We love Texas! The heat agrees with my arthritis. Arthur is very active with Civil Air Patrol. He is Public Affairs Officer for his group and won the yearly award for the best! All four kids are doing well. Shep, the eldest, is a chef in Atlanta, Clay is in shipping, Margot is a linguist, and Alicia is in high tech PR in the San Francisco area. I remember my Potomac days 1940–1944 with great fondness and loved the old school on California Street. Being so far away, I have never seen the new school but hope to one day.

Sally White Lee writes, I am happily married to Charles Lee. We have four children and 11 grandchildren. We winter in South Carolina and summer in Maine. Nice life!”

The Reverend Dr. Georgie Glenn Rodiger writes, “My five children are all doing well, as are my six grandchildren. One girl goes to Bryn Mawr next year. I’m still working as a psychologist and pastor."
From Mary Murray Bradley Coleman

Evelyn Scofield Rowland and her husband are now on Swan’s Island in Maine and expect to return to Georgia mid-October. She writes, “We decided that the island winters were a little much as we got older and found a condo in Madison, Georgia in walking distance to almost everything and very satisfactory, but we do not want to spend the summers there. We have seven grandchildren, four boys and three girls, ages 7 to 1½. Three of them are in Atlanta, so we see them during the winter. Son William will arrive here with his two daughters June 22 for home leave of three weeks from Sao Paulo Brazil. We welcome guests in Maine or Madison (60 miles east of Atlanta and 25 miles south of Athens) and would love to hear from all classmates.”

This email address works for Evelyn both places: esr@gwi.net.

Bunny McPeck is teaching at Harvard’s Landscape Institute and has been working on a number of landscape projects, including a Hudson River estate and, most recently, gardens associated with a small private library on Long Island.

Mary Murray Bradley Coleman writes, “Your secretary, Mary Murray Bradley Coleman sent out about 30 postcards and received only two answers – one by email and one by a return card. Thank you, Evelyn and Bunny. We can do better than that! Email makes it easy to send news. My address is mcolema2@maine.rr.com. Retirement continues to be wonderful and between walking, playing tennis and golf, I do some volunteer work at Ronald McDonald House and hope to start soon at Maine Medical Center. My year plus yellow lab keeps me company and, happily, summer brings my children and grandchildren. I have three of the latter, Lucie, almost 16, Aldie, 8, and Charlie, 5. Hope everyone is well.”
Cinda Train Longstreth writes, “Busy times. I am preparing for four summer art shows. My dentist wants paintings for five rooms in her office in the fall, and another doctor is buying paintings, as well. We’re off soon for Keene Valley, to our wonderful place in the Adirondacks. Daughter Libby will be painting and working at the local diner. Richard will be writing.”

Judith Putzel writes, “After 22 years at Keene State College (Keene, New Hampshire), I am retiring as Interim Director of the Counseling Center. This is my third time being Interim Director; I was Dean of Students for one year, as well. Nice to admit I am tired. I want to play more league tennis and ski more. I wonder how many of us as we turn 62 will make changes in our lives.

Julie Grennan Ronhoffde writes, “On April 20, 2007, Kent and I became grandparents for the first time – to twins, a boy and a girl – by older daughter Kristin and her husband Matt. In August, our younger daughter Brooke and her husband Eddie will give us a second grandson. It’s so much better than everyone says.

I have seen Phillida Spingarn a couple of times. She lives in Hawaii and we live in Bethesda. She was great and very busy. I hear from Cinda Train; she is doing well with her art.

Hope everyone is happy and well.

From Anne Williams

Edie Warner’s last day of work as a hospice social worker was June 5. She and her husband Denny Kinch are putting their house on Mercer Island, Washington on the market. They will spend several weeks this summer on their boat in Canada’s Gulf Islands. Their son Ted, 25, finished his second year of law school at Golden Gate University in San Francisco. He is a summer intern for the city’s prosecuting attorney’s office. Adam, 24, graduated from Central Washington University, and starts his masters in Geology at the Colorado School of Mines in August. Edie’s mom is 89, a bit frail but still her determined, independent self.

Leni Chapman Preston described a wonderful three day west coast mini-reunion in April, near Monterey with Maria Franco Granquist, Marisa Knowlton Domeyko, Jennifer Taylor Maser, Sandra Cuneo, French Gamble Wallop, Diane Kefauver, Amanda Kreglow, Edie Warner and Zan Smith Thomas. Leni is the vice-chair of the Maryland Women’s Coalition for Health Care Reform; the only statewide women’s grassroots organization in the country working specifically on this issue. The group was successful in getting a major piece of legislation through the Maryland General Assembly this year. Leni has been on a search for her birth families and feels extraordinarily fortunate to have discovered many warm and welcoming half-siblings. Leni continues to enjoy the company of her eldest daughter, Erica and her family (including two grandsons). Her youngest daughter, Caroline Preston ’98, also a Potomac alum, is a thriving journalist with the Chronicle of Philanthropy and Leni loves having her living in D.C.

Marisa has retired from National Geographic after 28 years, due to an organizational restructuring. We hope she can jump full time into her avocation: photography.

Parmalee Wells Tolkan lives in Lake Placid, New York. She discovered that her nephew Sam and Maria’s son played in a band together in college and are now sharing a house in San Francisco. I know my classmates join me in extending condolences to Parmalee, whose father died in 2006. Her mother now lives nearby.

Liz Jessup works in real estate in Washington, D.C. and, from the Small World Department, lives next door to Perrin Dulaney Pease’s father. Liz’s daughter Alex and her husband, Gabe, are moving to Baltimore so he can attend University of Maryland law school. Liz is very glad to have them close by.

Zan Smith Thomas and her husband, Frank still live on their farm and are very active in their church. Zan breeds and shows Connemara ponies and has a large garden. She tutors at a small private school, and sings in three different groups. Her daughter Penny and son-in-law Rudy are the proud parents of one year old twin girls. As they live in Berkeley, California. Zan and Frank (self-described doting and adoring grandparents) are single-handedly going to make Jet Blue profitable!

Alison Todd McClure and her husband Earl moved to the Tampa Bay, Florida area in 2003. Earl, an international financial consultant, has traveled to Dubai, UAE; Afghanistan; Finland; Central and South America. Most recently, he has been working with a company to develop storm, insect and fire-resistant affordable housing construction. Alison worked with him on some of these projects, as well as in her own profession as a CPA specializing in tax work.
Three of their four kids are married; one is engaged. Their oldest son Guerin and his wife Mary, who live in Cincinnati, have a daughter Alison and a son Emeric. Their oldest daughter Summer and her husband Browning have a daughter Ella and are expecting a second child in June. They live in Browning’s hometown of Jonesville, Virginia. Daughter Hope and her husband Bud, a forester, are in Birmingham, Alabama and daughter Georgia and fiancé Peter are in Arlington, Virginia.

Wendy Millar Phillips’s big news is their son Scott was married on May 17. Wendy and Anne Williams attended a gallery opening in New York where Linda Stillman was exhibiting some of her lovely non-figurative paintings.

Wendy Neel Ellsworth displayed her amazing beadwork at the SOFA-NY exhibit, an international sculptural and functional art show. Her husband David also exhibited his turned wood objects. They live in Pennsylvania and spend much of the summer in Colorado, where they are building a house. Wendy has been to Kenya several times, working with Masai women on beading projects, and helped me prepare for my trip there (see below). She and Barbara Franklin attended the Potomac reunion in April.

Harriet Sweeney Fraunfelter and her husband Eric are happily living in London, where Harriet has reconnected with her love of horses as a member of the Worshipful Company of Farriers. She’s been all over England helping the organization test and license the men and women who shoe horses. I had a wonderful visit with them in February.

Anne Williams writes, “I live in New York City (and love having visitors). In the past nine months I worked in Afghanistan and New York on women’s entrepreneurship projects, and recently returned from conducting a business and IT training in Kenya. My daughter Amanda (22) is in Boston working in an endocrine research study at Boston Medical Center and volunteering at the Boston Rape Crisis Center.”

Lindsey Holdsworth Aquino writes, “My son Felipe just completed his first year of college at Northern Virginia Community College. This is a big deal as he has cerebral palsy and is in a wheelchair. I continue private secretarial work part-time. My daughter Belen ’99 is doing well in Chicago as a full-time photographer. We are all going to Spain this summer to tour and see friends.

Dallas Pell writes, “I have been spending most of my time in Asia. When in the U.S. I’m still working on reinstating Pell Grants to incarcerated individuals, and living in New York. My son Easmes Yates is a partner in a media company based in Hong Kong. You can see his five minute teaser on www.BoyMeetsChina.com. I am very proud of him. I saw Anne Patten Milliken in Goa, India at her daughter Molly’s wedding – a fabulous three day event last May.

Jeffrey Will writes, “I joined the U.S. Navy back in 1969 and was honorably discharged in 1973. Married in 1974 and still happily married. I have two fine sons, ages 30 and 28. My older son is working for Xerox as an accountant and living in Vienna, Austria. He is married to an Austrian. My second son is completing his first tour in the Air Force and works on the U2.

My wife and I own and operate a manufacturing business, Will Power Enterprises Inc, in South Georgia building specialty items for the classic car market. Our Web site is www.classiconsoles.com. My hobbies include classic cars, of course, golf, and traveling.

My mother Barbara Will (age 84) worked at the Potomac School back in the ‘60s and currently lives in Florida.

Sturgis Warner writes that he continues to work as a theater director in New York City. He specializes in new plays.

1967

Kelly McDowell writes, “News-wise, in April I was picked as mayor again for another two years beyond the already-served four. And in 2006 our city of El Segundo was named the first-ever Most Business-Friendly City in L.A. County, of which we are quite proud. My son, Kelliston, is a junior at George Washington University in D.C. majoring in Political Science and doing great.”

Alexander S. Dominick is Director of Development of the Arizona Unit of Reading for the Blind and Dyslexic as of August 2007. My daughter Laura was married on July 27, 2007.
Grandson Ayden Brady McDaniel, a healthy 8 lbs with good lungs, was born April 14, 2008. Thomas will be a senior in high school this year, assuming we survive another Arizona summer. All are welcome to visit.

Jim Epstein writes, “Two years ago I became Chairman of my family’s investment management firm, investing in a highly-diversified mix of assets, the Nationals baseball team among them. One recent accomplishment was developing a mixed-use, pedestrian friendly community surrounding a marina on the banks of the Occoquan River, about 20 minutes south of Washington. It’s called Belmont Bay. I am now working on the development of another traditional village community in the north end of Culpeper County, Virginia.

Around the same time, I became Chairman of D.C. Greenworks, a social and environmental enterprise organization focused exclusively on green roofs in the Washington Metropolitan area. It’s a time-consuming “hobby,” but a very gratifying way to have a local impact addressing climate change.

My kids are thriving, too. My daughter will be entering junior year in high school, and my son will be entering 8th grade upon his return from a semester in Mexico. All the best to my old classmates.

Susan Orme Price is also teaching! She is wrangling kindergartners at the Hill School in Middleburg. Son Stephen is also teaching at Hill in the Upper School and has more seniority than his mother. Hill reminds her of Potomac. They perform an annual St. George and the Dragon play and dance around the Maypole!

Steve Freiligh’s magazine, “Nature’s Best Photography,” is “uncovering emerging photographers world-wide.” He says that they receive vast numbers of submissions. They mounted an exhibit called “Ocean Views” with “amazing images and videos of marine life” at the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History. They have also launched a youth publication, “Nature’s Best Photography for Kids,” with photos and stories from students 21 and under. On the family side, daughter Sarah, age 28, is living in Australia. She is enjoying life at the beach and working as an art director/graphic designer for books, magazines and websites. “She fell in love with an Aussie surfer so we may never see her back in Virginia.” Charlie, 22, just graduated from college with a degree in psychology. He is off on a year-long road trip with his buddies and a guitar before grad school. Younger son Jonathan, 14, enters high school this fall and acts as Steve’s outdoor photography buddy while visiting Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. Steve sums it up, “Deb and I are doing fine...getting older rather than wiser, but all’s well.” It all sounds great to me.

Mary White sends greetings from Yellow Springs, Ohio, where she is teaching ethics to medical students and taking “long bike rides between fields of corn and soybeans.” In 2004, Leslie Hyde and Eugenie Anderson came out to visit twice for the Kerry campaign. Mary says people in Xenia are still wondering when they are coming back. She also says others are welcome. Since this is an election year, remember that Ohio is very important.

I have been somewhat busy with work, but am trying to take some time off this summer. I just finished working on my second Sam Mendes movie in less than a year. Last summer it was a domestic drama set in the 1950′s called “Revolutionary Road.” This year it was a road-trip comedy called “Farlanders.” In between these I worked on a movie version of the Broadway play “Doubt.” Roland has been away for the last year and a half, working outside of Boston on “Leatherheads,” “The Happening,” and now “Ashecliffe.”

Hopefully he will be home soon for an extended period of time.

Robert Thayer, who lived a nomadic life overseas for many years, has been in Washington for 10 years. He has three children, Amanda, 20, is a junior at Vanderbilt doing an internship at home this summer. His other daughter Julia, 15, and son John, 12 both love music and sports. Rob works for USAID’s Office of US Foreign Assistance, providing “humanitarian assistance in response to about 70 declared disasters abroad each year on behalf of the U.S. government.” He invites any classmates who want to head downtown for coffee or lunch to e-mail him at rthayer@usaid.gov or call him at 202 294-8424.

May the rest of the year be great for everybody. If any of you have email addresses to add to your information, please notify the Alumni Office at alumni@potomacschool.org.

John Chester, Julie Edgeworth, Tina Adler, and I hated to see the evening end, and our not-really-so-suffering spouses had to eventually pull us away. We had a wonderful time, but missed our classmates who could not make it. We all signed a card for the ailing Mr. Henderson, whom Tom Macy ’67 was going to visit, and mourned Gus Duncan, whom we lost last year to a bicycle accident. (You can contribute to a scholarship fund in his name honoring all our lost classmates by contacting me or the alumni office.)

Here’s news that our classmates submitted. There are lots of life-changing events going on, from empty nesting, to sandwiching of generations, to new babies! Tina Adler (tinaadler2@verizon.net) had a new book published that will interest many of us coping with older parents. She tells us, “This spring, a book that I helped write – The Alzheimer’s Action Plan – was published by St. Martin’s Press. I wrote it with two Duke University professors. It’s a very useful and easy-to-read book for people who have friends, family, colleagues or neighbors who are in the early stages of any kind of a memory disorder, or for people who are worried about their own memory. What’s neat about this book is the diverse backgrounds of the three of us who wrote it: a doctor, social worker and health writer who took care of family members with the disease.” The Journal of the Am Med. Assn’s reviewer wrote, “I fully predict that this exceptionally well-written, reader-friendly book will become the standard resource for patients with Alzheimer disease and their loved ones.” (I ordered one from Amazon for in-laws who needs \down-to-earth info and they love it.)

Liza and husband Steve stopped by the Kentucky home of Chrissie Albert Carnes (jcgcyn@hotmail.com) and husband James last Thanksgiving week, and got a wonderful home-cooked meal of deer stew (one payment she gets as a part-time vet in the country) and other delicacies while surrounded by her six dogs and our one. Bill Calfee (bcalfee@... verizon.net) has “lots of news and not much time to write…” (New wife.) “Lara is pregnant! Lily is in Arkansas for the summer and plans to spend spring 2009 in Pont Aven, Brittany, France. Pete is getting ready to do a National Outdoor Leadership School program in Wyoming. We are on our 38’ Hallberg Rassy preparing it for a September 2009 departure… a five-year worldwide cruise.”

Bill’s been heavily involved in green issues (forget white weddings, Bill had a green wedding!), and his company, Peak Energy Solutions, is helping offer Renewable Energy Credits. If you’ve been thinking about offsetting the greenhouse gases you produce in your home and car, check out his company’s website at www.billcalfee.com.

John Chester (john.chester@wildapple.com) gives “Thanks to Keith and Kate for hosting a great reunion in April! It was wonderful to see everyone, and in particular Tom May. At one of my son’s hockey games last winter, I saw Tom Resor at Noble and Greenough School, where he teaches and coaches. I wonder how Tom handles students who are as crafty and funny behind the teacher’s back as he was! I’m immersed in our business, Wild Apple Graphics, as we face global competition, changes in technology, and an economy that’s a barrel full of laughs. I play old man ice hockey and soccer for fun, and am grateful for that, everyone is healthy (if not wealthy or wise) and for that I am eminently grateful.”

Charlie Spalding (cspalding@trelex.net) says, “All is well in the Spalding family. Stephanie turns 14 today and leaves tomorrow for summer camp in Vermont. And Christopher, after just finishing his freshman year at Elon University where is playing Division I tennis, has landed a job as a tennis pro for the summer at the Chevy Chase Country Club! Patricia and I will have an empty house for a while for the first time in about 20 years! Not sure exactly what we should do!” (I say we all go visit him in Costa Rica!)

As for me, Liza Gookin Hodskins, I’ve been getting more into the green movement here. Reinspired by an early screening with Al Gore (and initially, of course, by Earth Day ’71 at Potomac), I arranged for copies of “An Inconvenient Truth” to be distributed to all the science teachers in Arlington County, and at Potomac as well. As a result, I was asked by the County Chair to accompany him as an example of grassroots citizenship when he spoke locally about his Fresh AIRE program. I helped our citizen’s association win the “Greenest Neighborhood in Arlington” title last year, and we’re on track for earning it again this. In addition, Steve and I are the proud “parents” of three rain barrels, and we get excited about each rainfall! On the family front, we all are pretty healthy now, though at one point I, my mother, and my father each had broken or fractured arms, though from different causes! Steve and I just returned from a neat trip to Canada when we unexpectedly were in Québec for its 400th anniversary and Canada Day, and Montréal for the Jazz Festival. If you come to town, let me know – I’d love to see you! You can also join us virtually by going to our site at groups.yahoo.com/group/Potomac73.

Susan Holmes writes, “Hi Peggy. My news is that I am moving to Chicago after 26 years in NYC! Do we have any classmates living there? Or anyone from’74 or ’76? Maybe I can host a Chicago/Potomac reunion if there are enough people. My son Nathaniel will be going to Middlesex in the fall which is where I went to boarding school after Potomac. I will send my new info when I get it but my 212.741.2066 number will remain either to voicemail or to a cell phone.”

Along with taking his vacation time to make trips, Burke has paid for supplies out of his own pocket. From Kathryn Johnson and Regina Lee
College graduation dominated the spring for many members of the Class of 2004 and represented another major turning point in our lives. Each classmate has responded by following a distinct path, whether it be pursuing graduate school, social work, travel or the job search.

Eight years of high school and college weren’t enough for some members of our class. Dominic Dickerson will begin Howard Law this fall after interning at Arnold & Porter LLP in Washington, D.C. over the summer. Brent Lacey is headed back to Notre Dame to finish his five-year Architectural Design degree. In addition to studying, he will be captain of the Irish Guard and plans to defend his title in the 5-on-5 Bookstore Basketball Tournament. Katie Johnson has started graduate school at Boston University to obtain her Doctorate of Physical Therapy. Jessica Zunzer-Whitaker will start graduate school at the University of Southern California School of Social Work this fall. Samantha Simon will attend Syracuse University to obtain her Masters in Public Relations. Greg Kuzmik will enter Yale Medical School in September. Ryan Yonkman will be working with the Navy’s air warfare division in the Pentagon this summer. He begins flight school in Pensacola, Florida in September.

Various classmates have already devoted themselves to promoting social and economic development. Chris Heather has joined the Peace Corps in Peru to assist with small business development. Claire Robertson has been nominated to be a Peace Corps volunteer in Eastern Europe to teach English. Jasmine Morgan is working as a member of the Clinton Global Initiative University to help displaced Katrina victims get what they need and share their stories with the public. Genna Beier is dedicating her summer to grassroots political organization in Portland, Oregon through a fellowship with the Bus Project. She has also received a Rotary Ambassadorial Scholarship to do a yearlong Master’s program in Political Science next year in Latin America.

Traveling the world has been a popular path for a lot of graduates. David Brady is backpacking through Asia this summer and then will return to D.C. to work in the commercial real estate industry. Christine Montgomery will spend time hiking in New Zealand before she begins a similar career path. McKenzie Milllar has been living in Tanzania and working for an orphanage since graduation. Tesia Smith will travel to Costa Rica this summer with a travel company and then head to Japan in August to teach English. Mandy Gibson is spending an academic year in Paris and performing biological research under a Fulbright Scholarship.

Other members of our class will be starting full-time jobs come September, though few have told us their final plans. Margot Kabalkin, Regina Lee and Edmund Rucci will be working together for Bain & Company in Boston. Wil Stiner has been working in film, music, illustration and design since he graduated early from Connecticut College to push his experimental feature film “Ser O Estar” through the festival circuit. Britney Cuffee is currently obtaining her teaching certification with the Prince George’s County Teaching Fellows initiative. She will be teaching High School or Middle School Spanish this fall, as well as studying for the LSAT.
Jaya Chaterjee writes, “I graduated magna cum laude from Wellesley, and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. I will be starting my master’s degree in English and Comparative Literature at Columbia University this fall.

From B. G. Green

Zach Leonsis had a great first year at U Penn, and is beginning his summer with an internship at a foundation called the Homeless World Cup. Zach is helping rehabilitate people who are homeless, using the teachings and values of soccer. Kira Thompson joined USC’s chapter of Delta Delta Delta and – surprise, surprise – an a cappella group, Reverse Osmosis. During the year she became a leader in Students for Barack Obama, and because of this she will be working for the Obama campaign in Northern Virginia this summer. Brianna Evans participated in UVA’s Alternative Spring Break program where she ventured down to Biloxi, Mississippi to help deal with the destruction from Hurricane Katrina. Her group helped de-mold houses and clean up leftover debris that still remained in people’s properties, forests, and parks. Sam Adelberg has been keeping busy at Brown University, and she continues to dominate in track and field. Her team recently traveled to the University of London to compete in an international competition. Sam and her teammate Michaeline Nelson, as the two fastest 800 meter runners on the Brown team, gained two of the coveted spots on the trip. Stephanie Croghan also had a great year and helped the Boston University women’s varsity soccer team win their conference championship. Stephanie also got the chance to compete in the NCAA tournament. As one of the team’s leading scorers, Stephanie gained a prestigious spot on the All-Conference Rookie team.

Dear Potomac Community,

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, it is my pleasure to share with you this year’s Annual Report. I hope you will take a few moments to review the pages that follow and take note of the many people who have contributed gifts of time and financial resources to our School this year.

Because of the many people who have made contributions of dollars and hours, we were able to uphold Potomac’s longstanding commitment to excellence in the arts, athletics, and academics. The cornerstone of our efforts, The Annual Fund, provided more than $1.37 million to ease annual costs in our operating budget. The Campaign for Potomac’s Future, a 5-year comprehensive initiative that includes programmatic, facilities, and endowment initiatives, has raised $43 million to date. Our Fall Frolics Carnival and Auction reached a record-breaking new high of $478,000. None of these programs could have succeeded without the tireless commitment of hundreds of donors and volunteers. Thank you to everyone who participated this year.

Nothing is more important to the current and future advancement of Potomac’s educational mission than ensuring our School’s financial sustainability. The cost of education continues to soar. Our development efforts are critical to relieving tuition pressure while providing our esteemed faculty and staff the salaries, benefits and resources needed to ensure excellent academic programming. Our community has recognized this need and led us to record breaking successes over the last number of years. For that we are truly grateful. We remain diligent in our commitment to fiscal responsibility and finding new and creative paths to economic sustainability.

I, along with three other trustees, completed terms of service on June 30: Victoria Frankhauser Esposito ’83, Barry Kabalkin, and Bob Kettler, and with great sadness we said a final farewell to Gene Upshaw, who had served our community on the Board for five years. I thank them for their service and commitment as we welcome Enrico Cecchi ’85, Jeff Nuechterlein, Steve Quamme, and Lola Singletary ’78 to the Board of Trustees for the 2008-09 school year.

It has been an honor to have served as Chair for the past three years. I am thankful for the opportunity to have fulfilled this role at such an important time in Potomac’s history. I hope you will join me in welcoming and supporting Betsy Duff as the Board’s incoming Chair. Betsy brings a wealth of talents and experience with her leadership. I am confident that Potomac will reach even greater heights in the years to come as a result of the unique generosity of spirit of our entire community.

Sincerely,

Dorothy McAlufife
Chairman of the Board of Trustees

We have tried in every way possible to make these lists correct and to give credit to each person who contributed to Potomac during the 2007-2008 fiscal year. If we have made an error, we apologize. We sincerely thank you for your ongoing support of the School.
The Potomac School has a long tradition of volunteerism that enriches school life in many ways. The Gifts of Service listed below illustrate some of the activities that our volunteers work on each year, but it does not begin to measure their importance to Potomac. Our programs have a strength and spirit that is clearly evident throughout the campus because of the thousands of volunteer hours given so generously.

We would like to offer a special word of thanks to the many volunteers who give their time and talent so generously to:

The Board of Trustees reaffirms that The Potomac School strives for diversity in the conviction that a demanding, learning community is intellectually and morally strengthened when many different voices, viewpoints, and backgrounds are present. We administer our educational policies, admissions policies, financial aid program, athletic program, and other school programs, including the hiring of faculty and staff without discrimination based on race, color, religion, gender, age, nationality, sexual orientation, or any other category to the extent protected by applicable laws.
Today, Mercedes and Giuseppe Cecchi are proud grandparents of Potomac students Carla 2019, Enrico 2020, and Gabrielle 2016. They also are parents of alumni Antonio ‘84, Carlos ‘90, Enrico ‘85, and John ‘92. Both Mercedes and Giuseppe are Advisory Trustees having served on the Board of Trustees with their combined tenure totaling almost a decade. Enrico, following in his parents’ footsteps, was elected to the Board in June, 2008. As a family they represent almost a quarter of a century supporting both the Annual Fund and The Campaign for Potomac’s Future. We applaud and are grateful to this quintessential Potomac family for their good deeds and their good work on behalf of the School.
